

ID Native

NA

AMERICAL

THE

NATIVE AMERICAN:

A Gift for the People

"TIME'S NOBLEST OFFSPRING IS HER LAST."

PHILADELPHIA

MDCCCXLV.

The second of the District Court of the District of Pennsylvinia.

PUBLISHER'S PREFACE.

The plan of this volume has been under consideration for several years.

The sentiments of truth and patriotism, promulged by the fathers of the Republic, are too little known; and the grave and unattractive character of such essays prevents their general circulation in ordinary typography. The graces of outward ornament, so often applied to unworthy purposes, are here pressed into nobler use. The style chosen was suggested by the daily business of the publisher; but he must also confess that, having long regarded American Productions in a rose colored light, he is now desirous that others should participate in the same privilege, both mental and physical.

The first three articles of the volume need no introduction. The Elders of the Nation there speak to us from the grave: to the impressiveness of their counsel in earlier days is now added the solemn dignity of death!

The remaining pages exhibit the views of a portion of the present generation upon the public welfare.—
The facts and inferences there set forth appeal to the whole people for judgment as to their consistency with the universally approved doctrines which precede them. To this tribunal they are submitted with full confidence, and its impartial decision is all that is asked.

In offering this work to his countrymen, the Publisher is fully sensible of the humble part he bears in the enterprise; and yet, as his exertions may not prove utterly worthless. In the phrase of an old editor, he brings a nosegay of rare flowers, or rather a bunch of balsamic plants, of sovereign virtue and enduring fragrance, with nothing of his own but the thread that ties it.

"Eacls moment plies its pigmy sickle, emulous Of Time's enormous scythe"—

Philada. 1845.

FAREWELL ADDRESS

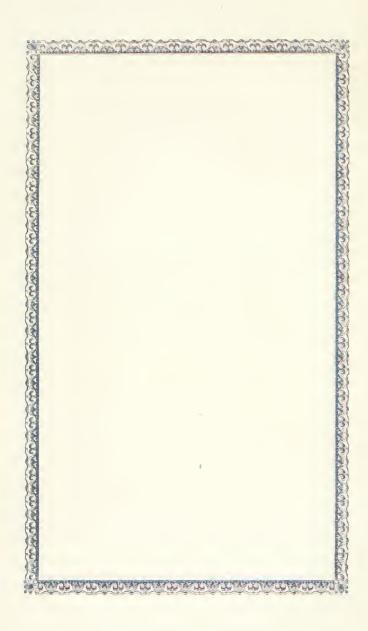

OF

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

TO HIS COUNTRYMEN.

The direst bours data United States, September 17. Excellent of that you, which result of in the clone a one Admis, is second president if the Republic.

FAREWELL ADDRESS.

FELLOW CITIZENS,

The period of a new election of a citizen to administer the executive government of the United States being not far distant, and the time actually arrived when your thoughts must be employed in designating the person who is to be clothed with that important trust, it appears to me proper, especially as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprise you of the resolution I have formed, to decline being considered among the number of those out of whom a choice is to be made.

I beg you, at the same time, to do me

the justice to be assured, that this resolution has not been taken without a strict regard to all the considerations appertaining to the relation which binds a dutiful citizen to his country; and that, in withdrawing the tender of service which silence in my situation might imply, I am influenced by no-diminution of zeal for your future interest; no deficiency of grateful respect for your past kindness; but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both.

The acceptance of and continuance hitherto in the office to which your suffrages have twice called me, have been a uniform sacrifice of inclination to the opinion of duty, and to a deference for what appeared to be your desire. I constantly hoped, that it would be much earlier in my power, consistently with motives which I was not at liberty to disregard, to return to that retirement from which I had been reluctantly drawn.

The strength of my inclination to this, previous to the last election, had even led to the preparation of an address to declare it to you; but mature reflection on the then perplexed and critical posture of our affairs with foreign nations, and the unanimous advice of persons entitled to my confidence, impelled me to abandon the idea.

I rejoice that the state of your concerns, external as well as internal, no longer renders the pursuit of inclination incompatible with the sentiment of duty or propriety; and am persuaded, whatever partiality may be retained for my services, that in the present circumstances of our country, you will not disapprove my determination to retire.

The impressions with which I first undertook the arduous trust, were explained on the proper occasion. In the discharge of this trust, I will only say, that I have, with good intentions, contributed towards the organization and administration of the government, the best exertions of which a very fallible judgment was capable. Not unconscious, in the outset, of the inferiority of my qualifications, experience in my own eyes, perhaps still more in the eyes of others, has strengthened the motives to diffidence of myself; and every day the increasing weight of years admonishes me more and more, that the shade of retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome. Satisfied that if any circumstances have given peculiar value to my services, they were temporary, I have the consolation to believe, that while choice and prudence invite me to guit the political scene, patriotism does not forbid.

In looking forward to the moment which is intended to terminate the career of my public life, my feelings do not permit me to suspend the deep acknowledgment of that debt of gratitude which

I owe to my beloved country, for the many honors it has conferred on me; still more for the steady confidence with which it has supported me; and for the opportunities I have thence enjoyed of manifesting my inviolable attachment, by services faithful and persevering, though in usefulness unequal to my zeal. If benefits have resulted to our country from these services, let it always be remembered to your praise, and as an instructive example in our annals, that under circumstances in which the passions, agitated in every direction, were liable to mislead, amidst appearances sometimes dubious, vicissitudes of fortune often discouraging, in situations in which not unfrequently want of success has countenanced the spirit of criticism, the constancy of your support was the essential prop of the efforts, and a guaranty of the plans by which they were effected. Profoundly penetrated with this idea, I shall carry it with me to the grave, as a strong incitement to unceasing vows that Heaven may continue to you the choicest tokens of its beneficence; that your union and brotherly affection may be perpetual; that the free constitution, which is the work of your hands, may be sacredly maintained; that its administration in every department may be stamped with wisdom. and virtue; that, in fine, the happiness of the people of these states under the auspices of liberty, may be made complete, by so careful a preservation, and so prudent a use of this blessing, as will acquire to them the glory of recommending it to the applause, the affection, and adoption of every nation which is yet a stranger to it.

THE TRANSPORT OF THE PROPERTY OF STREET STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET, STREET,

Here perhaps I ought to stop. But a solicitude for your welfare, which cannot end but with myself, and the apprehension of danger. natural to that solicitude, urge me, on an occasion like the present, to offer to your solemn contemplations, and to recommend to your frequent review, some sentiments which are the result of much reflection, of no inconsiderable observation, and which appear to me all-important to the permanency of your felicity as a people. These will be offered to you with the more freedom, as you can only see in them the disinterested warnings of a parting friend, who can possibly have no personal motives to bias his counsel. Nor can I forget, as an encouragement to it, your indulgent reception of my sentiments on a former and not dissimilar occasion.

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm the attachment.

The unity of government which constitutes you one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so; for it is a main pillar in the edifice of your real independence, the support of your tranquillity at home, your peace abroad; of your safety, of your prosperity; of that very liberty which you so highly prize. But as it is easy to foresee, that, from different causes and from different quarters, much pains will be taken, many artifices employed to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth; as this is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously) directed, it is of infinite moment that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national Union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish a cordial, habitual, and immovable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and speak of it as of the palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts.

00/4 00/4 00/4 00/4 00/4 00/4 00/4

For this you have every inducement of sympathy and interest. Citizens, by birth or choice, of a common country, that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must also exalt the just pride of patriotism, more than any appellation derived from local discriminations. With slight shales of difference, you have the same religion, manners, habits and political principles. You have, in a common cause, fought and triumphed together: the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings, and successes.

Work of the contraction of the c

But these considerations, however powerfully they address themselves to your sensibility, are greatly outweighed by those which apply more immediately to your interest. Here every portion of our country finds the most commanding motives for carefully guarding and preserving the union of the whole.

The North, in an unrestrained intercourse with the South, protected by the equal laws of a common government, finds, in the productions of the latter, great additional resources of maritime and commercial enterprise, and precious materials of manufacturing industry. The South, in the same intercourse, benefiting by the agency of the North, sees its agriculture grow, and its commerce expanded. Turning partly into its own channels the seamen of the North, it finds its particular navigation invigorated; and while it contributes, in different ways, to nourish and tion of the maritime strength to which itself is unequally adapted. The East, in of interior communications, by land and requisite to its growth and comfort; and Atlantic side of the Union, directed by an West can hold this essential alvantage, strength, or from an apostate and unnatural connexion with any foreign power, must be intrinsically precarious.

While, then, every part of our country thus feels an immediate and particular interest in Union, all the parts combined resource, proportionably greater security ruption of their peace by foreign nations; must derive from Union an exemption selves, which so frequently afflict neighbouring countries not tied together by the ships alone would be sufficient to produce, but which opposite foreign alliances, attachments, and intrigues would stimulate military establishments, which, under any form of government, are inauspicious to liberty, and which are to be regarded as particularly hostile to Republican Liberty, in this sense it is that your Union ought to be considered as the main prop of your liberty, and that the love of the one ought to endear to you the preservation of the other.

These considerations speak a persuasive language to every reflecting and virtuous mind, and exhibit the continuance of the Union as a primary object of patriotic desire. Is there a doubt whether a common government can embrace so large a sphere? Let experience solve it. To listen to mere speculation in such a case were criminal. We are authorized to hope that a proper organization of the whole, with the auxiliary agency of governments for the respective subdivisions, will afford a happy issue to the experiment. 'T is well worth a fair and full experiment. With such powerful and obvious motives to Union, affecting all parts of our country, while experience shall not have demonstrated its impracticability, there will, also, be reason to distrust the patriotism of those, who, in any quarter, may endeavour to weaken its bands.

In contemplating the causes which may disturb our Union, it occurs as matter of serious concern, that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations, "Northern and Southern, Atlantic and Western;" whence designing men may endeavour to excite a belief, that there is a real difference in local interests and views. One of the expedients of party to acquire influence, within particular districts, is to misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jealousies and heart-burnings which spring from these misrepresentations; they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to be bound together by fraternal affection. The inhabitants of our western country have lately had a useful lesson on this ratification by the Senate, of the treaty with Spain, and in the universal satisfaction at that event throughout the United States, a decisive proof how unfounded were the suspicions propagated among sippi; they have been witnesses to the Britain, and that with Spain—which secure to them every thing they could desire, in respect to our foreign relations, towards confirming their prosperity. Will it not be their wisdom to rely, for the preservation of these advantages, on the Union by which they were procured? Will they not henceforth be deaf to those advisers, if such there are, who would sever them from their brethren, and connect them with aliens?

To the efficacy and permanency of your Union, a government for the whole is indispensable. No alliances, however strict, between the parts, can be an adequate ence the infractions and interruptions perienced. Sensible of this momentous truth, you have improved upon your first former for an intimate union, and for the mature deliberation, completely free in its ing, within itself, a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support. Respect for its authority, compliance with its laws, acqui escence in its measures, are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true Liberty. The basis of our political system, is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitution of government; but the constitution which at any time exists, till changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power and right of the people to establish government, presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government.

All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberations and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive to the fundamental principle, and of fatal tendency. They serve to organize faction, to give it an artificial and extraordinary force; to put in the place of the delegated will of the nation, the will of a party, often a small but artful and enterprising minority of the community; and according to the alternate triumphs of different parties, to make the public administration the mirror of the ill-concerted and incongruous projects of faction, rather than the organ of consistent plans digested by common councils, and modified by mutual interests.

However combinations or associations of the above description may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely, in the course of time and things, to become potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people, and to usurp for themselves the reins of government; destroying afterwards the very engines which lifted them to unjust dominion.

Towards the preservation of your government, and the permanency of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you steadily discountenance irregular oppositions to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretexts. One method of assault may be, to effect in tem, and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown. In all the changes to which you may be invited, remember that time and habit are at least as necessary to fix the true character of governexperience is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution of a country; that facility in changes upon the credit of mere hypothesis and opinion, exposes to perpetual change, from the endless variety of hypoON CONTRACTION OF THE CONTRACTIO thesis and opinion; and remember, especially, that for the efficient management of your common interest, in a country so extensive as ours, a government of as much vigour as is consistent with the perfect security of liberty is indispensable. Liberty, itself, will find in such a government, with power properly distributed and adjusted, its surest guardian. It is indeed little else than a name, where the government is too feeble to withstand the enterprises of faction, to confine each member of the society within the limits prescribed by the laws, and to maintain all in the secure and tranquil enjoyment of the rights of person and property.

I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the state, with a particular reference to the founding of them on geographical discriminations. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party generally.

COMPACE COMPAC

This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists, under different shapes, in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form, it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy.

The alternate dominion of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which generally result, gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and, sooner or later, the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation, on the ruins of public liberty.

Without looking forward to an extremity of this kind, (which nevertheless ought not to be entirely out of sight,) the common and continual mischiefs of the spirit of party are sufficient to make it the interest and duty of a wise people to discourage and restrain it.

It serves always to distract the public councils, and enfeeble the public administration. It agitates the community with ill-founded jealousies and false alarms; kindles the animosity of one part against another; foments occasionally riots and insurrection. It opens the door to foreign influence and corruption, which find a facilitated access to the government itself, through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and the will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another.

There is an opinion that parties, in free countries, are useful checks upon the administration of the government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This, within certain limits, is probably true; and in governments of a monarchical cast, patriotism may look with indulgence, if - not with favour, upon the spirit of party. But in those of the popular character, in governments purely elective, it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency, it is certain there will always be enough of that spirit for every salutary purpose. And, there being constant danger of excess, the effort ought to be, by force of public opinion, to mitigate and assuage it. A fire not to be quenched, it demands a uniform vigilance to prevent its bursting into a flame, lest, instead of warming, it should consume.

It is important, likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country, should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding, in the exercise of their powers of one department, to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. A just estimate of that love of power, and proneness to abuse it, which predominates in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position. The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal against invasions by others, has been evinced by experiments ancient and modern: some of them in our own country and under our own eyes. To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them. If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in a way which the constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil, any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, Religion and Morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism, who should labour to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connexions with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths, which are the instruments of investigation in courts of justice? And let us with a cution include the supposition, that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

1 10 m 10 m 10 m 10 m 10 m

'T is substantially true, that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule indeed extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who that is a sincere friend to it, can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?

Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened.

As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it, is to use it as sparingly as possible; avoiding occasions of expense by cultivating prace; but remembering also, that timely disbursements to prepare for danger, frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it; avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions, in time of peace, to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burthen which we ourselves ought to bear. The execution of these maxims belongs to your representatives; but it is necessary that public opinion should co-operate

To facilitate to them the performance of their duty, it is essential that you should practically bear in mind, that towards the payment of debts there must be revenue; that to have revenue, there must be taxes; that no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient and unpleasant; that the intrinsic embarrassment inseparable from the selection of the proper objects, (which is always a choice of difficulties,) ought to be a decisive motive for candid construction of the conduct of the government in making it, and for the spirit of acquiescence in the measures for obtaining revenue, which the public exigencies may at any time dictate.

Observe good faith and justice towards all nations: cultivate peace and harmony with all: religion and morality enjoin this conduct; and can it be, that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and at no distant period, a great nation, to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt, that in the course of time and things, the fruits of such a plan would richly repay any temporary advantages which might be lost by a steady adherence to it?—Can it be that Providence has not connected the permanent felicity of a nation with its virtue? The experiment, at least, is recommended by every sentiment which ennobles human nature. Alas! is it rendered impossible by its vices?

In the execution of such a plan, nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations, and passionate attachments for others, should be excluded; and that in the place of them, just and amicable feelings towards all should be cultivated. The nation which indulges towards another an habitual hatred, or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interests. Antipathy in one nation against another, disposes each more readily to offer insult and injury, to lay hold of slight causes of umbrage, and to be haughty and untractable, when accidental or trifling occasions of dispute occur.

Hence, frequent collisions, obstinate, envenomed, and bloody contests. The nation, prompted by ill-will and resentment, sometimes impels to war the government, contrary to the best calculations of policy. The government sometimes participates in the national propensity, and adopts, through passion, what reason would reject; at other times it makes the animosity of the nation subservient to projects of hostility, instigated by pride, ambition, and other sinister and pernicious motives. The peace often, sometimes perhaps the liberty of nations, has been the victim.

So likewise, a passionate attachment of one nation to another, produces a variety of evils. Sympathy for the favourite nation, facilitating the illusion of imaginary common interest, in cases where no real one the enmities of the other, betrays the former into a participation in the quarrels inducement or justification. It leads also to concessions to the favourite nation of privileges denied to others, which is apt doubly to injure the nation making the what ought to have been retained; and by exciting jealousy, ill-will, and a disposition to retaliate, in the parties from whom equal privileges are withheld; and it gives to ambitious, corrupted, or deluded citizens, who devote themselves to the favourite nation, facility to betray or sacrifice the interests of their own country, without odium, sometimes even with popularity; gilding with the appearances of a virtuous sense of obligation, a commendable deferonce for public opinion, or a laudable zeal for public good, the base or foolish compliances of ambition, corruption, or infatuation.

As avenues to foreign influence in innumerable ways, such attachments are particularly alarming to the truly enlightened and independent patriot. How many opportunities do they afford to tamper with domestic factions, to practise the arts of seduction, to mislead public opinion, to influence or awe the public councils! Such an attachment of a small or weak, towards a great and powerful nation, dooms the former to be the satellite of the latter.

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, (I conjure you to believe me, fellow-citizens,) the jealousy of a free people ought, to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. But that jealousy, to be useful, must be impartial; else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defence against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation, and excessive dislike for another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil, and even to second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favourite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have as little political connexion as possible. So far as we have already formed engagements, let them be fulfilled with perfect good faith Here let us stop.

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote, relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off, when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality, we may at any time resolve upon, to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground?

90 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4) 60 (4)

Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humour, or caprice?

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances, with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it: for let me not be understood as capable of patronising infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat it, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But, in my opinion, it is unnecessary, and would be unwise, to extend them.

Taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, in a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.

Harmony and a liberal intercourse with all nations, are recommended by policy, humanity and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an equal and impartial hand; neither seeking nor granting exclusive favours or preferences; consulting the natural course of things; diffusing and diversifying by gentle means, the streams of commerce, but forcing nothing; establishing, with powers so disposed, in order to give trade a stable course, to defend the rights of our merchants, and to enable the government to support them, conventional rules of intercourse, the best that circumstances and mutual opinion will permit, but temporary, and liable to be from time to time abandoned or varied, as experience and circumstances shall dictate; constantly keeping in view, that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favours from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that by such acceptance it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favours, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more. There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favours from nation to nation. It is an illusion which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.

0.00 00.00 00.00 00.00 00.00 00.00 00.00 00.00 00.00

In offering to you, my countrymen, these counsels of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope they will make the strong and lasting impression I could wish; that they will control the usual current of the passions, or prevent our nation from running the course which has hitherto marked the destiny of nations. But, if I may even flatter myself, that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good; that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigue, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism; this hope will be a full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare, by which they have been dictated.

How far, in the discharge of my official duties, I have been guided by the principles that have been here delineated, the public records, and other evidences of my conduct, must witness to you and the world. To myself, the assurance of my own conscience is, that I have at least believed myself to be guided by them.

In relation to the still subsisting war in Europe, my proclamation of the 22d of April, 1793, is the index to my plan. Sanctioned by your approving voice and by that of your Representatives in both Houses of Congress, the spirit of that measure has continually governed me; uninfluenced by any attempts to deter or divert me from it.

After deliberate examination, with the aid of the best lights I could obtain, I was well satisfied that our country, under all the circumstances of the case, had a right to take, and was bound in duty and in interest, to take a neutral position. Having taken it, I determined as far as should depend upon me, to maintain it with moderation, perseverance, and firmness.

The considerations which respect the right to hold this conduct, it is not necessary, on this occasion, to detail. I will only observe, that according to my understanding of the matter, that right, so far from being denied by any of the belligerent powers, has been virtually admitted by all.

The duty of holding a neutral conduct may be inferred, without any thing more, from the obligations which justice and humanity impose on every nation, in cases in which it is free to act, to maintain inviolate the relations of peace and amity towards other nations.

The inducements of interest for observing that conduct, will best be referred to your own reflections and experience. With me, a predominant motive has been to endeavour to gain time to our country to settle and mature its yet recent institutions, and to progress without interruption to that degree of strength and consistency, which is necessary to give it, humanly speaking, the command of its own fortunes.

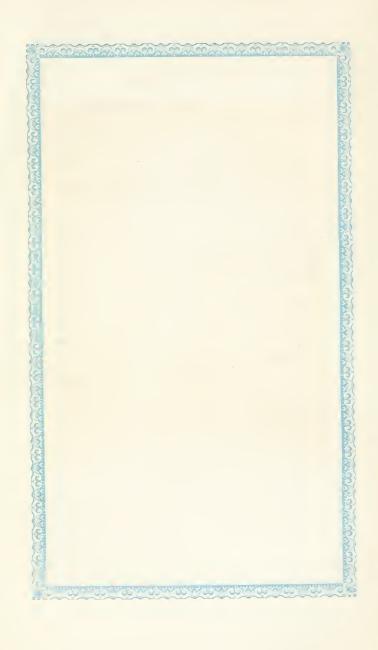

Though, in reviewing the incidents of my administration, I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseach the Almighty to avert or mitigate the evils to which they may tend. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence; and that after forty-five years of my life dedicated to its service, with an upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.

Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love towards it, which is so natural to a man, who views in it the native soil of himself and his progenitors for several generations; I anticipate with pleasing expectation, that retreat, in which I promise myself to realize, without alloy, the sweet enjoyment of partaking, in the midst of my fellow-citizens, the benign influence of good laws under a free government; the ever favourite object of my heart, and the happy reward, as I trust, of our mutual cares, labours, and dangers.

G. WASHINGTON.

United States, Sept. 17th, 1796.

DECLARATION

OF

INDEPENDENCE.

In the Congress of 1776, the great question of American Liberty came first to be discussed. On the 8th of May, Mr. Adams offered a resolution, that the Colonics should adopt governments adequate to the wants of the country, and independent of Great Britain. The success of this resolution on the 15th was considered as decisive of the question of allegiance to any foreign power. On the 7th of June, Richard Henry Lee, seconded by Mr. Adams, moved in Congress the ever-memorable resolution of American Independence. The debate continued until the 60 DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

A CONTRACTION ON TO VICE

10th, when the consideration of the resolution was postponed until the 1st of July. The next day, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and R. R. Livingston, were appointed to prepare a draught of a Declaration of Independence. The two gentlemen first named on this Committee having been deputed a sub-Committee to draw up a Declaration, at the desire of Mr. Adams it was prepared by Mr. Jefferson.]

DECLARATION.

0.00/40.00

WHEN in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect for the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separa-

We hold these truths to be relf-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these, are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate, that governments long established, should not be accordingly, all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain, is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having, in direct object, the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world:

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature; a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within. He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose, obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has crected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in time of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined, with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment, for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond the seas to be tried for pretended offences;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighbouring Province, es-man was a man a man a man a man

tablishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the work of death, desolution and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruV. 00/22.00/24.00/elty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hand.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions, we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature, to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connexions and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority, of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connexion between them and the State of Great Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as Free and Independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And, for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honour.

JOHN HANCOCK,

President.

NAMES OF THE SIGNERS

FROM THE

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Josiah Bartlett, William Whipple, Matthew Thornton. 10 10 2 CO 12 CO 1

NAMES OF THE SIGNERS

FROM

MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

Samuel Adams, John Adams, Robert Treat Paine, Elbridge Gerry.

FROM THE

STATE OF RHODE ISLAND

Stephen Hopkins, William Ellery.

FROM THE

STATE OF CONNECTICUT.

Roger Sherman,
Samuel Huntington,
William Williams,
Oliver Wolcott

FROM THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

William Floyd, Philip Livingston, Francis Lewis, Lewis Morris.

FROM THE

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Richard Stockton.
John Witherspoon,
Francis Hopkinson,
John Hart,
Abraham Clark.

NAMES OF THE SIGNERS

FROM THE

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Robert Morris,
Benjamin Rush,
Benjamin Franklin,
John Morton,
George Clymer,
James Smith,
George Taylor,
James Wilson,
George Ross

FROM THE

STATE OF DELAWARE.

Cæsar Rodney, George Read, Thomas M'Kean.

FROM THE

STATE OF MARYLAND.

Samuel Chase, William Paca, Thomas Stone, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton.

NAMES OF THE SIGNERS

FROM THE

STATE OF VIRGINIA.

George Wythe.
Richard Henry Lee,
Thomas Jefferson,
Benjamin Harrison,
Thomas Nelson, Jr.,
Francis Lightfoot Lee,
Carter Braxton.

00 - 00

NAMES OF THE SIGNERS

FROM THE

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

William Hooper, Joseph Hewes, John Penn.

FROM THE

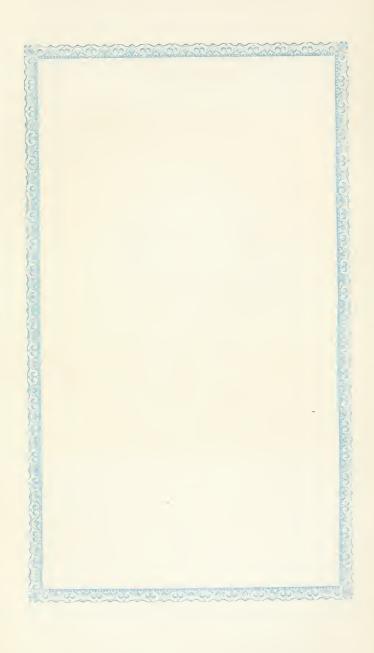

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

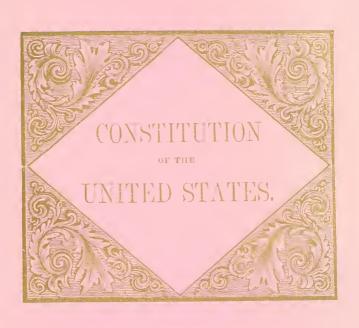

Edward Rutledge, Thomas Heyward, Jr., Thomas Lynch. Jr., Arthur Middleton

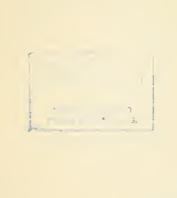

FROM THE

STATE OF GEORGIA

Button Gwinnett, Lyman Hall, George Walton.

*

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

UNITED STATES.

WE, the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice ensure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America:

ARTICLE I.—Congress.

Section 1.—Legislative Powers.

1. All Legislative Powers begin granted shall be vested in a Congress of the

44.00 (A. 00 (A) 00 (A)

United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives

SECTION II.—House of Representatives

1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature

Qualification of Members-Apportionment.

- 2. No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.
- 3. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers,

CONTRACT CONTRACTOR CONTRACTOR

three-fifths of all other persons. The ac-Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. shall be made, the State of New Isomp-

4. When vacancies happen in the repre-

TO THE COME OF THE COME OF THE COME OF THE COME

sentation from any State, the Executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill up such vacancies.

5. The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Section III - Senute.

- 1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Lagrandure thereof, for six years; and car't Senator shall have one vote.
- 2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The sents of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year, and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments, until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

- 3. No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.
- 4. The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.
- 5. The Senate shall choose their own officers, and also a President pro-tempore, in the absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.
 - 6. The Senate shall have the sole power

modernocking worksom och och och och och to try all impeachments; when sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

7. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend farther than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, trust or profit under the United States: but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

Section iv.—Election of Members.

1. The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators.

MODERATE MODERATE AND COMPANIES

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section v.—Powers of each House.

- 1. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business: but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties, as each House may provide.
- 2. Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.
 - 3 Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, except such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy: and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

4. Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section vi.—Compensation, Privileges, &c

1. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

2. No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

Section vii.—Bills and Resolutions, &c.

- 1. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives: but the Senate may propose, or concur with amendments, as on other bills.
- 2. Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that House should agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that House, it shall become a law. But in all such cases, the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

3. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary, (except a question of adjournment,) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Section VIII.—Powers of Congress.

1. The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States: but all duties, imposts and excises, shall be uniform throughout the United States.

0014/10014/10014/10014/10014/10014/10014/10014/

- 2. To borrow money on the credit of the United States:
- 3. To regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes:
- 4. To establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankrupteies throughout the United States:
- 5. To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures:
- 6. To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States:
- 7. To establish post-offices and post roads:
- 8. To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries:

- 9. To constitute tribene la imbriocto de Same un Consti
- the leading and pursuic provies and to me a monthly on the right and the color of the leading of
- 1) To make a minimum to be a dispersion of the make a dispersion of the make a dispersion of the control of the
- Appropria de France de Ares hale
 - the Tree of Canada and Canada and Street

THE THE PARTY OF T

- and regardous of the budget many large.
- 176 To provide the other with the nulling to a section in the section 100 Large, supply to the section of the section is a section of the section of the section is a section of the secti
- and distribution the modern and five vectoring and distribution of the modern as the employeem is survived in the Court, receiving to the State of the concers and the autopointment of the autopointment of the concers and the autopointment of the autopointment of the annual the multiple ording to

The prise exclusive legislation in all the services extract cost and the services are services as the services are services and other services buildings: And,

1. To make all lays which shall a control of proper for carrying into control of the foreign powers and all powers with lay the Construction in the government of the United Educes, or in any department or officer thereof.

Section ix.—Prohibitions and Privil ges.

1 The migration or importation of such

00/1/00

MATERIAL COLOR COL

pot his a my of the Side dow cut-ing and dunk proper to about, the hard is green to be the Congress prior to the congress of the drive and congress of the drive and congress of the drive and the drive indicate the first of the congress of the drive the congress of the drive prior to the congress of the drive prior to the congress of the drive prior to.

Character of H ' or Car Sect the Astronomy of H ' or Car Astronomy or Astronomy or Car Astr

the No. Collection of the collection of the post field the collection of the collect

MOTATORIO MANTENINA POR PORTO POR PROPERTO POR PORTO POR PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO PORTO

Leaver and a morning of the testing testing of the contract of

5. No be or duly half behalfin arti-

C. No preference and a giant tenner regulation of common concerning to the ports of my Standard the man are many factors which was also bearing to a given the concerning to a given to a given the concerning the concerning to a given the concerning the conce

CONTROL MAN CONTROL MAN CONTROL MAN CONTROL CO

THE WAS THE WA

State, be obliged to oner, clear, or pay duties in another.

7. Vermoney shall be about from the Trossay one consequence of appropriations are under statement and account of the receipts and respenditures of all public manage shall be published from time to time.

s. No tile of nobility shall be granted by the United States; and no person holding any office of proliter to stunder them, shall, without the content of the Contents, accept of any present enclument, office, or tile of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state.

Storion L.—Stat Restrictions, &c.

1. No State shall after into any treaty, aliance or confederation, grant latters of marine and rearisal; oin money; cant bills of credit; make my thing but gold and silver constraints of divisi pass any bid of a minimum x post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

2. No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its import of laws; and the nett produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any State on imports or uports, shall be for the use of the Umastry of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

CANDO AN CICAMIO ANCONO AN CICAMIO AN CICAMIO AN CICAMIO AN CICAMIO AN CICAMIO ANCONO ANCON

3 No State shall, without the consent of Congress, my any duty on tonninge, keep troops, as it is of war in time of piece, into the airs of war in time of piece, into the state, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invarial, or in such imminent danger as will not that of delay.

MODERATE PROPERTY OF THE OF TH

ARTICLE II.—PRESIDENT

Section I.—Election for President.

- 1. The Executive power shall be restable as a President of the United Series of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, a other with the Vir President, cluser for the some torming electrical as follows:
- 2. Each State shall appoint, in such a unit of as the Legislature thereof in a direct, a number of Electors, could to the whole number of Sourters, and Representatives to which the Soute may be cutched in the Congress but in Source of Personal Indians and Representative, or personal Indians and Congress but it is a differ of coest, or profit after the Lait of Slots, small be uponinged in Tabletor.
- 5. The Electors shall meet in tour respective State and vote by ballot for the President and Vice President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the small state with them elves: the shall

A CONTROL WAS THE WAS

State of the organization of the

The state of the s

M. C. M. C.

TO THE WAR WAS A TO THE WAY TO THE TOTAL THE

the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the represent tion from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next fellowing, then the Vice President shall act as President, as in case of the death or other constitutional dispositive of the President

4. The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice Prevident, shall be the Vice President in the number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice President; a quorum for that purpose small consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice.

- 5. But no person constitutionally incligible to the office of President, shall be eligible to that of Vice President
- 6. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the Electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States.
- 7. No person, except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States
- 8. In case of removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

- 9. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his savices a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States or any of them.
- 10. Before he enters on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:
- "I do solemnly swear, (or affirm,) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section II.—Powers of the President

- I. The President shall be commandermean f of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the militia of the second States, when called into the actual second of the United States, he may require the opinion, in writing, of the princial officer in each of the Executive deportments, upon any subject relating to the duries of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprinces and parlons for offices against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.
- 2. He shull have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and concur t of the Source, shall appoint and the state of the Source, shall appoint and the state of the Source, shall appoint and the state of the source.

suls, Judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. But the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments

3. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session

Section III.—Duties of the President.

1. He shall, from time to time, give to Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and, in case of disagree ment between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Section iv.—Impeachment of Officers.

1. The President, Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.—JUDICIARY.

Section I. — Courts — Judges.

1. The Judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The Judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behaviour, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services, a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Section II.—Judicial Powers—Civil—Criminal.

1. The judicird power shall extend to all crees in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United Slates, and the treaties made, or which shall be made under their authority; to all cross affecting ambass ders, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiraty and maritime juris liction, to controversies to which the United States shall be a party, to controversies between two or more States—between a State and citizens of another State—between citizens of the similar of different States—and between a State, or different States—and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and fereion States, citizens or subject:

- 2 In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a State shall be a party, It Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations, as the Congress shall make
- 3. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed, but when not committed within any State, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by he whave directed.

Section III.—Treason.

1. Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies diving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

2. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attainted.

ARTICLE IV.—STATE RIGHTS.

Section I.—Restitution and Privileges.

1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Section II.—Privilege of Citizens.

1. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and manuae tes of oi izing 11 the a verification.

- 2. A proper of cross or only State with the com, who are not or only who sind flor from in the molific flow Executive and many cities. State from the flod, by delivers the molecular molific to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.
- 3. No person held to a rice or labour in one State, and rim a wetter of, escaping into money, small, in consequence of any low or remain a thorain, be discharged from some control of the party to whom such sectice or labour may be due.

SECTION III.—New States

1 New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union, but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State no arm on working work on work on the contraction

State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress.

2. The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section IV.—State Governments, Republican.

1. The United States shall guaranty to every State in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on application of the Legislature, or of the Executive, (when the Legislature cannot be convened,) against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V .- AMENDMENTS.

1. The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States. shall call a Convention for proposing amendments, which in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate

ARTICLE VI.-DEBTS.

- 1. All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the Unit de States under this Constitution, as under the confederation.
- 2. This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any State to the coursery notwithstending.
- 3. The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legiclaures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirm tion, to support this Constitution. But no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.—RATIFICATION.

1. The ratification of the conventions of nine States, shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

Done in Convention, by the unanimous consent of the States present, the sevent enth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousands ven hundred and eighty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the Twelfth.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto superioe lour names.

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

President, and Deputy from Virginia.

AMENDMENTS.

Articles in addition to, and amendment of, the Constitution of the United States of America, proposed by Congress, and ratified by the Legislatures of the several States, pursuant to the Fifth Article of the original Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances

(190)

ARTICLE II

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia when in actual service, in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject, for the same offence, to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall he be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a spee ly and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have teen previously ascerniced by how, and a bearing of the induce and enter of the induce and enter of the induced with the value of the second o

RTII

In such a common law, where the value in concerns to the second of the point of the point of the second of the second of the second of the connection of the connection.

ARTI LE VII

Expressive half shall not be required, nor excessive fine improve for cruel and uncount punishments inflicted

ALLI LL IN

The crumination in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be constitued to learn approaches retained by the right

ARTICLL X

The power, not derented to the United Same by the Construction, nor prohibited by it to the States respectively, or to the proper

ARTICLT NY

The judy well power of the United States and made and any out of the interest of the United States or any of another State, or by citizens or abjects of any foreign state.

ARTICLE XII

The Liectors shall neet in their reprince States, and vote by ballot for Prasident and Vice President one of whom on a man a man and on the company of the company of the form that ion be and. The

The star of the manner of the start of the for as Project, the House of Paper of tatives alral choice immediately, by build the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States the representation from such Shite having one of a purpose and for this papers. Indicate a name of our mather from twothinks of the States, and a majority of all the States, and a majority of all the States and a majority of all the States are a president when we can be a president of a constant of a constant of a constant of the states are a president when we can be a president of the states are a president of the states are a president of the states are the states are a president of the states are the states are an all devotes the states are a president of the states are an all devotes and the states are a president of the states are an all devotes and the states are a president of the states are an all devotes and the states are all devotes are all devotes and the states are all devotes and the states are all devotes and the states are all devotes are all devotes are all devotes and the states are all devotes are

The person lating the groot trumtor of with the President and the the Via Taxagent of community be a mamuse of the solution person have majority, hen from he two light a monthly on the

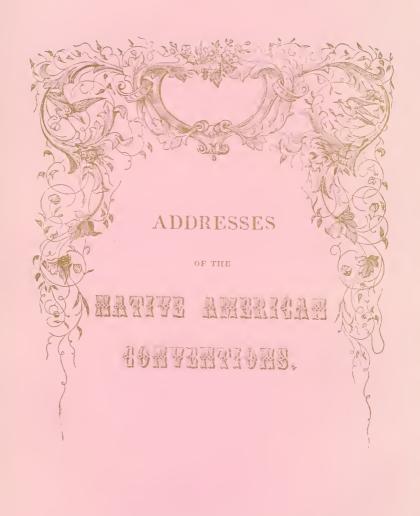

Lating the Stage of the March 1 and March 1 124-

CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PORT OF

sident, a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Schators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice.

But no person constitutionally incligible to the office of President, shall be cligible to that of Vice President of the United States.

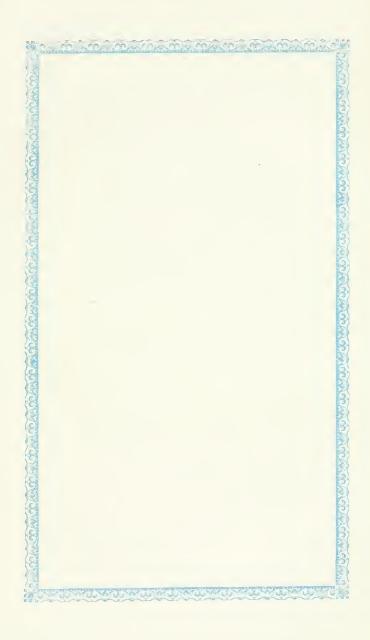

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

100 CO 10

The following article was issued by the Native American Delegates, who met in Convention in Philadelphia, July 4, 1845. These citizens were charged with the task of stating the dangers which threaten our public welfare, and of suggesting a remedy for the same. How far they have fulfilled the first part of their high trust, the reader may judge—the latter portion can be determined by posterity alone.

(135)

ADDRESS.

FELLOW-CITIZENS!

When, in the history of nations, great and name using evils arise, and invade the rights of a product to destroy the just and natural priviles of a product the comes cauchy the duty and the interest of that people to present to the world such representation of their measures as shall tend to justify her effort to name as shall tend to justify her effort to name there evils, and establish permanent means to prevent their resultance. It has been the fite of all names, and especially of Republics, to suffer in various ways from the encroachments and assumptions of a for-

mat. and experience has already shown felt it to be their met soleme and imperaselves on to a wiler, for the purpose of intrusion and usurpation, and the imminent danger to which all they love and venerate as native Americans is momentarily exevils, and oppose barriers to their future progress. They I we, therefore, called together in convenient, in many Thiladelphia, the rapid manifest of more than the rapid manifest of my same and ferring the evil and a agrees amplianced of, not the more courage to appear and repress to m; and now, in conformity with using and luty, there represents its ivet announced by the Native American parts, their repress for action, and the principles by which they propose hereafter to be governed.

DECLARATION.

Wr, the Delegates elect to the first National Convention of the Native American body of the United States of America, assembled at Philadelphia on the 4th day of July, 1815, for the purpose of devising a plan of concerted political action in defence of American institutions against the encrowled rets of loreign influence open or concerted, hereby, sole mily, and before Almighty God more known to our fellow-citizens, our country, and the World, the following incontrovertible facts and the course of conduct consequent thereon, to which, in duty to the cause of human.

WOODER OF THE PROPERTY OF THE rights and the claums of our beloved country, we mutually pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred lonour

The danger of foreign influence, threatening the gradual destruction of our national institutions, failed not to arrest the attention of the Tother of his Country in the very dawn of American Liberty. Not only its direct agency in rendering the American system liable to the poisonouinfluence of European policy—a policy at war with the fundamental principles of the American Constitution—but also its still more fital operation in aggravating the rirulence of partizin warfare within our own borders—has awarened deep alarm in the mind of every intelligent patriot, from the days of Washington to the present time

The indux of a foreign population permitted, after little more than a manual residence, to pur terpace in the legislation of the country and the second right of suffrage.

STOCK OCK OF STOCK OF

MANAGE THE STANFORD STANFORD STANFORD STANFORD

produced comparatively little evil during the earlier years of the Republic; for that tives, by the constant exhaustion of the European population in long and bloody ducements offered for emigration to a -lad converted the slender current of overwhelm the miluence of the narives of the land—the far-seeing vision of the statesman, only, was fixed upon the distant, but studily approaching cloud.

ized through the conflicts of domestic parto digest and announce a plan of operations, of the market of the market of the by which the grievances of an abused hospitality, as I the consequent degradation of political morals may be redressed, and the tottering columns of the temple of Republican Liberty, secured upon the sure foundation of an enlightened nationality.

In calling for sum of upon every American who leves his country, and every adopt a citizen of in radical and intellectual worth, who would near to his comparious yet to emerican us, the blessings or political protection, the safety of person and property, a list ight that we should near known the grievance which we propose to redress, and the manner in which we shall endeavour to effect our object.

It is an incontrovertible truth, that the civil institutions of the United States of America, have been seriously affected, and that they now stand in imminent peril from the rapid and enormous increase of the body of residents of foreign birth, em-

CAN CONTRACTOR CONTRAC

but with minute a day and a magnetic form and appear to be a to a made for a management of the first of the f

Our some mental constraints invited to our some mental constraints on a land of the word of the constraint of the constr

CHANGE WAS THE CHANGE WAS THE CONTROLLED WAS THE CO

favor, has a tempone to come increthe die prospective ection of the scale of a note that the common to the comtion a process which is a process of the common to the comtion a process which is an expectation of the comtion a process which is an expectation of the comprocess of the common to the comtion a process which is an expectation of the comtion as a process which is a company to the comtion as a process which is a comtion as a process which is a comtion as a company to the com-

Let one your threshold a comment and the term of the state of the term of the

1/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20/14/20

A COLOR COLO

CAN COLOR CO

Thus completely the and a point of table a unit of the following of an incomplete and the property of the prop

THE TOTAL PROPERTY OF THE PROP

OF COMMON COMMON

the and corporate below in foreign with an include a connect to the point of the European and include a connect the European and a connect the point of the European and a connect the connection of th

The formulation of Europe are constituded on our constant within by the our invitation, and the outlined point constant, for a point of the outlines of the old world have contributed door, not to enter the street of our capital of the street of our capital of the street of our capital of the by modern hospitals the other points are to contributed from the contributed has a they have a finite or a sport of the outlines of the outlines rope:—per con we reasonably consultanted benchmark; and is of such material that we profes to manufacture free and enlight ned citizens, by a process of cupying five short years of time—a process of en practically completed within a much shorter period by everion of the lax.

The mass of oreign voters, formuly lost among the naire of loss 1, he incomes from the monoic monoic contains to that a pair will have the naire unizers a minerity in the rown and! Thirty years ago here stance combinationally in the stance combination in the monoic manner to the stance of the st

007470074700747007470074700

the property of the state of th

POLOGIA POLOGIA POLOG

A COMPANIENT A COMPONITOR OF A COMPONITOR OF A COMPONITOR A COMPONITOR

must of them rought only for an nonemalical bood and a provi of for their turnature; and rarely medicled with these partitions of which it was impossible that they could comprehend the nature;—none control comprehend the nature;—none control control seeks political preferment, and truggles to fasten on the public purse, and arraying ty, in strict proportion to his tension and animoral seeks political soft upone trust—a ving been sent for the purpole of the intion—in any been sent for the purpole of the intion—in any been sent for the purpole of the intion—in any been sent for the intion—in any been sent to work a revolution from regulation and the control of the intion of the intion of the intion of the intion of the intion.

From these individual control of the property of the property io librity and the averthree of malividad rope, inducing the associated and the unto be maintained or a comparance indire try of our everba dem I am develo in-

TO THE THE PARTY OF THE STAND THE STAND THE STAND THE STANDS OF THE STAN

THE TOWN THE STATE OF THE STATE

or the promo on or managemen

Whenever an attend of is middle to restrain this fool and, the dome c and ship ed arms crues proust again an olorty nich threatens to deprive them of their rice important tools; and such is the existing organization of our catalished political parties, that should either of them essay the reform of an abuse which both acknowledge to be fraught with ruin, that party sinks, upon the instant, into a minority, divested of control and inc public of result.

From such causes has been derived a body, armed with political power, in a country of whose system it is ignorant, and in whose institutions it feels little interest except for the purpose of personal advancement.

This body has formed and encouraged associations under foreign names, to promote measures of foreign policy and to perpetuate fereign clanmanness among adopt a citatella of the United States;—in contravention of that spirit of union and nationality without which no people can legitimately claim a place among the nations of the earth.

0/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012/00/2012

It has employed the power of association to embroil the people of this country in the political disputes of other lands, with which the United States are anxious to encourage peace and amity.

It has introduced foreign emblems, not only of national, but of partizan character, in the civic professions and public displays of bodies of men, claiming the title of American citizens, and sworn to American fealty; by which means it has fomented frequent riot and occasional murder.

It has adopted national costumes and national insignia foreign to the country, in arming and equipping military corps constituting part of the national cuard, with its word of command in a foreign language, in open defiance of our military code; by which means it has weak ned the discipline of the militia, and rendered it less available for defence in time of war.

It has entered into the strife of parties as a separate organization, unknown to the laws, suffering itself to be addressed and led to the contest—not as a portion of the grand family of freed in, but as a carbination of Irishmen, Germans, Franciscon, or collectively as forcing as, thus virtually falsifying its an acof classiance, and proving, beyond donial, its entire until less for policial trust.

It has formed and encouraged political combinations, holding the blance of power button of posing parties; which combinations have offered their votes and induence to the highest bidder, in exchange for purges of official parties and patronage

It has boasted of giving Governors to our states, and chief magnetrates to the nation.

By serving as an unquestioning and uncompromising tool of executive power, it has favoured a political centralism hestile to the rights of the independent states, and the sovereignty of the people.

It has facilitated the assumption by the national executive, of the right to remove from effice, without the consent of the Senate persons value can be appointed only with such consent; which assumption is an obvious evasion of the spirit of the constitution.

It has encouraged political combinations for the purpose of effecting sectorion measures; in defiance of the fundamental law of the United States, and the constitutions of the states in which such efforts have been made.

It has given rise to the organization and arming of foreign bard 'tti, lengued for the purpose of controlling the free lone of discretion, and opposing the constitutional assembling of American freemen, seeking the redress of political grievances; which lawless bands have repeatedly threatened, recaulted and temporarily dispersed, law ful political meetings of native citizens in various places.

TO THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT

Emboldened by the often-tested weakmess of the constituted authorities, resulting, as we solemnly believe, from the ascendency of the foreign influence at tho polls, a host of these foreign assassins at length proceeded to redden the gutters of the second city of the union with the blood of unarmed native citizens, without even the semblance of provocation, and with the avowed determination to prevent any political assemblage of the natives of the soil within the limits of one of the political divisions of a sovereign American state.

Prostrated in this attempt by the ungovernable fury of an outraged community moving in mass to avenge such insult to the flag of their country, trampled and torn beneath the feet of the very refuse of Europe,—these ruffians and their abettors have since fomental extensive riot and apen insurrection; and, uniting with their

TO CONTRACTOR AND TO THE CONTRACTOR AND TO THE CONTRACTOR AND THE CONT

prejudiced fellow-countrymen, together gation of the laws. Collision of origion

The body of adopted citizen: with for-advancing, with rapid strides, in ground-trical progression. Already it has acquired a control of our elections which cannot entirely corrected even by the wisest be in India, until the present generation shall be numbered with the past. Already it has notoriously swayed the course of national legislation, and invaded the purity of local justice.—In a few years its unchecked progress would cause it to outnumber the native defenders of our rights, and would then inevitably dispossess our offspring, and its own, of the inheritance for which our fathers blid, or plunge this land of happiness and peace into the horrors of a civil war.

The correction of these evils can never be effected by any combination governed by the tactics of other existing parties. If either of the old parties, as such, were to attempt an extension of the term of naturalization, it would be impossible for them NOW THE THE THE THE THE THE THE THE THE

to carry out the measure, because they would immediately be abandoned by the foreign voters. This great measure can be carried out only by an organization like our own, made up of those who have given up their former political preferences.

For these reasons, we recommend the immediate organization of the truly patriotic native citizens throughout the United States, for the purpose of resisting the progress of foreign influence in the conduct of American affairs, and the correction of such political abuses as have resulted from unguarded or partizan legislation on the subject of naturalization, so far as these abuses admit of remedy without encroachment upon the vested rights of foreigners who have been already legally adopted into the bosom of the nation; and in furtherance of this object, we present the public with the following statement of the political principles and objects of the Native American body, who eduly constituted representatives are are

PRIN IIILE

While the point of the contions, not remaind the point of the contions of the continuous of

That no man can emoistic offer y the projudies and attachment associated with the lend of his offer as a to become a purfect year.

That the obligation of a solid y to a foreign main the month of the every trailing and the month of the line to the month of the line to the month of the line have as yet no absolute ducision of this question in our Supreme Court, all preorden's bearing on the subject and us to a minipular assimilar conclusion for And the continue — That the doctive is nearly, which is the primary and fundament of country in the hands of natives of the country in the hands of natives of the country in the hands of natives of

But, in provious tier of our government, we are villing, a present and bear, hard provided as a bear, hard provided and a manufactured and a second a se

We advocate such an amendment of the Constitution of Line, State somewhat meaning of the land of produce the context of produce and a line of produce and a line of the land of

We show plotty in the experience there end of the end o

We columns present amore all interests gline of actions and compactly the local policy of presidence of two services of those states.

We had that all minor querious of expendences on legisland from advices in control of the government with a discrimination of the government with a discrimination of the management to Fublic Domain, and the process herefrom, belong by right to the matter the people, and the state, to be them the second of cited, from time to the matter a commutation of the public gray — and to be one proper conditions, and all them whele country — in that the adoption of any previous of a determination upon such questions by my national party, degrades it times to the process in the second of the sec wer,—all that stand high as American incourses in contradictinct on to forcigu.

CONTRACTOR AND TO SERVICE STORY OF THE SERVICE STORY

Note agriculture of the lish first—native industry, first and last, in every branch of trade—art—ingenuity—mechanics—and invention. We aim at the independence of our country—in all things—moral, intellectual, physical, and political—in works of the hand, as well as in works of the head—in manual labour and in mental sagacity. We desire to make our government what our fathers designed it should be—and witness native statesmen in power—native industry triumphant over foreign labour—and native hearts, announcing America emancipated from all the world.

We advocate such an amendment of the Constitution of the United States as shall reconcile its letter with its spirit, on the subject of executive appointments, rendering all officers, commissioned by and with the consent of the Senate, incapable of removal except by and with the like consent

We also recommend to the native Americans of the several states a prompt reastance to all sectarian intransidations and politics, or political insulations admerited from what source it may; the absolute from of religious opinion being the corner-stone of American civilization.

We also recommend to the native Americhas of the several states, the careful fistering and improvement of local institutions for public instruction, to be supported at the public expense, without which a government of the people in the speedily become a government of localrance and probable depravity.

We also recommend to the native Americans of the several states, in their eystems of education, a full recognition of the Bible as divine authority for the rights of man, as well as for that separation of church and state on which depends so escentially the pursuit of happiness and freedom of conscience. To the Bible we are indubted for the wand that broke the sceptre of tyraits, and realing of the Bible among the people of the sound of th

exploded this doctrine, and the Native Americans defend it, and will continue to defend it, against all foreign aggression, as necessary to freedom of conscience, and the equal rights of man.

Having thus completed an outline of the principles and policy advocated by the Native American political party as a national party, we call upon every true friend of his country to rally under our standard before it becomes too late. We invite the assistance of every adopted citizen of sufficient intelligence to perceive his own real interest and that of his posterity. Warring with no particular sect, attacking no particular nation—regardless of the spleen of pre-existing partics—we are gathering to the combat in opposition to that foreign influence, and these abuses of party spirit which were so ably foretold by Washington and Jefferson. Invoking Heaven in testimony of the purity of our motives, we have all maly a time in a more to allow our effort and the sur-springful is much floats freely over the re-nationalized land of our birth and our affections.

T

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

The following Address, indicative of the views of Native Americans upon the State policy of Pennsylvania, was prepared by the Convention which assembled at Harrisburg, August 6th, 1545,—the same body which nominated a candidate for Canal Commissioner.

(171)

ADDRESS.

It is now generally known that a Nathe Native-born citizens of the United corruptions already engrafted upon Ame-

American party of the United States, by defining, in a series of clear and not to be mustaken resolutions, the political views of the members of the Native American party, from Maine to Texas, and from the Oregon to the Atlantic. An address, explanatory of these views and purposes, has been solemnly published, and to the principles therein laid down the Native Americans of Pennsylvania have heartily responded.

That Convention, in its wisdom, pronounced a condemnation of one of the most fertile sources of partisan corruption, in the following terms:

"We hold that all minor questions of expediency in legislating upon subjects unconnected with the fundamental structure of the government, such as fiscal and commercial regulations, the management of the Public Domain, and the proceeds therefrom, &c., belong by right to the representatives of the people, and those of the several states, to be by them discussed and decaled, from tune to time, after mature a general under the constitutional resonant constitution constituti

The address of the public of t

It is district the Native American party was warden in the common of th

American interest—industrial judicial, legislative and literary;—and, in the same broad spirit, it is incumbent upon the Native Americans of Pennsylvania, to foster and defend which interest of our noble State—to insist upon her equit be claims—to defend her honour—to compel the strict observance of her laws without fear or favour—and to establish beyond dispute the lofty reputation transmitted as an heir-loom from her four der—the author of "the only maty in the rified by ath, and the only treaty that was lever broken"

Impoverished by extravegance and sullied by the consequence of ficious legislation,—notinly condition from these corruptions at the billot box winding we birth to our political in wemon—our State appears I fore to wor'd at preent, in no enviable light. To restore her tarniculal fame, and give fresh impulse to her prosperity, will demand the labour of years.

102 DA COLVED CO 102 CO 102 CO

nor is it possible to force of the various policy which is the new to the new terms the impurity of the horizontal product and the control of the control of the control of the control of the product of the product of the control of

The Convention to men bers of which now allows you, one the indeed larly constituted is at Convention of Native Americans and in Pennsylvania, subsequently to the national organization of the party, finds itself charged with the execution of this duty by precedent, propriety, and the necessity of the case; and in the performance of the task, it will be strictly guided by the spirit of the National Addom.

A CO LONGO L

In glancing at the existing political condition of Pennsylvania, we are struck upon the instant with the ruinous condition of her finences. Standing forth, in bold relief among the many evils which surround her, appears a debt of more than forty millions of dollars, the interest of which, for several years unpaid, or but partially liquid ted, now hangs a dead weight on her industry, and a destructive blot upon her credit. The strenuous and manly exertions of our political opponents to remedy some portion of the latter opprobrious evil, by the regular payment of the two last instalments—exertions which, unlike all other political parties ranged in a hostile attitude, we can afford to signalize and are happy to acknowledge—decrye and should receive the warmest tranks of every Peansylvanian; but these measure are powerless to remove the burden of taxation which, though light in comperison with that of almost every other country, is continually driving capital, intelligence and industry beyond our horders, to swell the means of our more prosperous neighbours, while less ening our actility to meet the annual demands of honesty and justice.

It is needess to inform you that the course of this in lebte lass is found in the enormous sums expended on the public works of Pennsylvania; works which in intring value—developing, as they have done, the vast resources of the Stace, have already enhanced her solid weal he to an extent not easily to be computed, but which, for many years, have scarcely yielded, in immediate income, the cost of their repairs. To the parties interested in the loans by means of which these works have been completed, the speculation therefore wears the scual income a ruinous investment, whatever wouldn't may appear to have diffused throughout the Common wealth.

In making the c remarks, we are not to be understood as expressing any opinion upon the subject of the sale of the public work, it have our determination to permit every member of our party to exercise his own unlessed judgment upon that question.

Fuch his increase madness of legislation on the subject of reinord, and conals, that, to gratily the narrow view of the people of particular distants, looking solely on the temporary extenditure of a little radio of managers their own immediate radio larged, this works have been constructed in surface and disconnected fragments. The temporary of that needs the whole of the minday and disconnected fragments of the result in a surface of the minday of the result in the surface of the minday of the surface of the minday of the surface of the s any part; and thus the accumulation of principal upon interest, together with the extravagence, if not perulation, inseparable from all ill-ordered undertakings, has saddled our system of internal improvements with a load of cebt which finds no representation in the manediately productive value of the works. Again, habitual mismanagement and uncertain legislation have deeply shaken the confidence of capitalists and critizens in the ability and perminent disposition of our rulers to make with purchasers a safe and equitable contract.

With an eno mous interest, principally forcist, engaged in socking every advantage on the one hand, and a vacillating Ligislature, con rolled by oreign influence at the polls, and armed with sovereign power and only sovereign responsibility upon the other, the total arms the lond-holds, and on the other, the total arms the lond-holds, and on the other totals of Pennsylvano, have in men and measures in relation to this vital question, without which the credit of the State and the saleable value of the works are not to be maintained. We lack that confidence in the propriety of the expenditures and in the perspicuity of the accounts of income, which constitute the value of investment. For this reason—as we firmly believe—when the question of the sale of the public works was submitted to the people, the vote upon the subject was not sufficiently extensive to furnish a just test of popular opinion. The peoplo want more light—ne want more light and we seek it by the nomination of men the fullest confidence. We want reform in the Legislature—reform in the Board public works. We seek it at the hands and by the hands of natives of the soil, who know our interests and are identified with them. We want no hasty legislation on this all-important subject. At present the receipts of the public works are on the mercuse, while their expenses are declining. Their value in the market has been so scriously depressed by the various circumstances already mentioned, that the reception of their present available price would leave us still encumbered with a large proportion of our existing debt, after the blind sacrifice of vast assets of doubtful value, viewed at this moment in the most unfavourable light.

Our want of confidence in the safety of any probable legislation on this subject, in the existing state of parties, is enhanced by the recollection of the only transaction resembling a sale which has resulted from the wisdom of a Pennsylvanian Assembly. When, in 1843, the credit of the State was at the lowest ebb, about $350,000 were required for the completion of the Drie Dxtension - in inportune in in our great ready expended more than $2,000,000. Legislature granted to a private company given time, subject, however, to repurchase date of repurchase, with interest at eight vestment of more than $3,000,000 for the

With the second second

According to the control of the cont

While the control of the control of Pennsylvania dopolitica de vondure de la contra del contra de la contra del contra de la contra del contra del contra del contra de la contra del contra del

Chic manue the consent of any various — action of the public and a minute product and a simple of the product and action of the research into the proceeds into the grant of the research and a simple of the research and action of the research and action of the proceeds of this appearance of the proceeds of this appearance, instead of being kept of their and regularly applied, as far as they would a fact to the approach citio an makena par la presenta come come la la presenta de come de la presenta de come de com processing or the process to be a superior of the process to be one of the process to be one of the principal of the principa

777 (0. 2 02 0

I be combined to the about the combiincertable to most the introducer to restly in book assemble some or Pene glamma, this does not the analysis and the manage of the company of

In mount settere very reader for the direction of the mount of the mou

Discribis all the war a many he following periode:

The state of the second second

The limber of the cubout seed of the inin the process of the first had the created at the create and control of the process of the created from the created at the created from the inspire of even of isolated at the time is find settlem at . So fine, the time does not, in control of the created from the created at the created at the control of the created at the Hillor or the mineral plant on the Con-tion Second June, a ready transfer at for the wants of our rapidly here sing population.

But in the concision of the y tens of the part in the cashing of all-during notice of station coally or allegely except, we find the element of an increment direction of all or allegely except, we find the element of an increment direction of all or allegely except, we find the element of an increment direction of a large fine element of the many of the element of

In the case of ends of her prospectly, and in the error and nine of ninegreat revulsion. Permissive in the largelected that others have agreed a count ways, and it he ones her new to grain and to attend her recovers of every same and agrees and agrees.

The comment of the comment of the comment thou made who change who accounts it was a restrict to the change of the

I adjust the Shit-James larve been from the portion of this which being an extension of connection, and constituted part of the demonstrated beautiful and the above dalready for purpose of characters, with a portion of this connection, which is such as the connection of the connection pose than to secure the reign of demagoguic particle bent on plund it to fister heardess spectration, and it tripply a bounty for the introduction of more of that for ign in lucine which already threatens our description. We demand it now, before that now infarious squandering of our property which came to be the special object of the ruling purchase, he robbed us of the vactor sources of air until diterratory, beyond the power of recipitation.

AND CONTRACTION OF THE CONTRACTI

Other chains against the public lands, of similar nature and equally unquestionable justice, may be and shall be urged and solidly established; but we have said enough for this occasion. We charge, that neither of the parties who successively misrule this noble State are willing to present the people with intelligible statements of their own affairs, or to defend their dearest rights. We have shown that an entire reform in our financial system is required once more to elevate the name of

Time labour, and exponer will be required in the normalization to be of reform a tion, but knowing well the master ore of

MACOMODIMODIMODIMODIMODIMODIMODIMODIMODIMO

1000 1-2 67 - 60 1-2 60

roughly and of houses of Penergy and and a few forms of Penergy and and a few forms of Penergy and and a few forms of Penergy and to be a few forms of Penergy and Pener

PARTINION CONTRACTOR OF THE PARTINION OF

The thought of all and a situated the section of th

-You who have lis ened to the falsehoods

we still swey the destines of Pennsylvania Come then people of the Keyston.

State. Study and understand us! Friends of your country, rally to the rescue! Wherever five or six of you are gathered in any town, or hamlet, or populous country neighbourhood, there read our National Address—there read the Constitution of our primary Associations—there organize and act. We have yet to hear of such a meeting, held at any place where hearts keep time to reason on their country's honour, without the planting of our banner and the establishment of still another centre for the diffusion of the love of order, law, intelligence and patriotism—terms synonymous with the principles of the great Native American political body, called, in deference to established custom only, by the name of party.

You who are of no party—the quiet, staid, and virtuous men who "like not politics"—you who have ventured into the arena only to hasten from it in disgust—on you we call to aid us! Are you fend of the repose of private life, and called on the mary a en blag s of other parties.

views? Come and correct them! With us there are no previous pledges to obscurd our reason. Convince us, and we are yours; for we listen to the weakest and the strongest. Come then, and rally to our aid, or if delay occurs by your neglectin those reforms which ultimately shall succeed, then bear the curses of the widow and the orphan for a few years longer, and answer for the results of opportunities neglected. We wash our hands of the responsibility.

IHE ND

